

Miss Valeri Lopez Bio

Miss Valeri Lopez is a singer-songwriter, arranger, an avid reader and a fanatical beach volleyball player. Miss Lopez grew up in Los Angeles and got her start performing original tunes in notable Hollywood venues like The Whiskey A Go Go, The Hotel Cafe, and The House of Blues. She's lived in the beautiful Northwest in Portland and Seattle, and also has lived across the Atlantic in Florence, Italy; always performing, writing and recording. The voice of Miss Valeri Lopez is sweet and expressive, bold and delicious with a sincerity that almost makes you feel like your secrets are being exposed. Her lyrical style, refreshing and genuine speaking straight into the heart, is fused with memorable pop melodies and jazz influenced harmonies. You will likely find yourself humming one of her tunes a day or two later without even realizing it. After 12+ years of writing, recording and touring, Miss Lopez went back to school to finish her Bachelors in Music at University of Southern California's Thornton School of Music. Studying with some of the world's most incredible people in the music industry like Patrice Rushen(Grammy Award Winner/First Woman to be a Musical Director for the Grammy's), Kathleen Grace(Modern Influential Jazz Vocalist/Songwriter), and Jason Goldman(Composer/Arranger for Michael Buble'). When she's not recording and performing, Miss Lopez teaches music to the next generation, passing along her passionate love for the music and also enjoys volunteering at a local women's shelter.
